

Prohibition Fight May Prevent Senate Recess; Factions Fail to Unite on Program

"DRYS" WANT AGREEMENT TO SETTLE ISSUE BY FINAL VOTE

A hitch in the plans for a Senate agreement on a recess and disposition of wartime prohibition developed today. As a result, there was no certainty when the Senate would recess or when prohibition would be voted upon.

The difficulty was caused by the fact some of the drays insisted that the agreement bind the Senate to take up the Norris amendment after the recess and vote on it. The drays wanted the agreement to be to hold the bill before the Senate after the proposed recess until disposed of.

Insist on Having Vote.

The drays, some of them, contended this might not insure a vote, as a bill might be "disposed of" in divers ways.

Senate leaders hummed about the chamber when the body was called to order today. They tried to line up the doubtful and the resolute.

Senator Borah strongly insisted that the agreement include requirement for a vote.

Senator Shepard took the same position. Both are prepared to oppose any measure looking to a recess until there is a hard and fast agreement that the food production bill will be taken up as soon as the recess ends, considered to the exclusion of other business, and disposed of by a vote.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Washington, is to dedicate its building at Columbia road and Euclid street on Sunday. The dedication service will not vary from the communion service which falls on that day, except that a brief historical sketch will be read by the first reader at both the 11 o'clock and the 8 o'clock evening service.

Christian Science churches are not dedicated until free from debt. In the case of the First Church, the fact that its former building was not disposed of until recently has prevented earlier compliance with this requirement for dedication.

Bryan Is Working.

Meantime, things are moving rapidly in the wartime prohibition controversy.

William Jennings Bryan is working hard for the dry cause and from out in North Dakota and Minnesota is sending messages to Washington telling of strong prohibition sentiment.

The National Coal Association has taken a hand in the controversy and has issued a statement declaring national-wide prohibition for the period of the war is "absolutely essential" in the opinion of bituminous operators if the mines are to be effectively speeded up.

This statement by the National Coal Association was hailed by the drays today as calculated to refute the arguments of Chairman Hurley and Bainbridge Colby, of the shipping board, who have declared they fear the effect of prohibition on the morale of shipyard workers.

The National Coal Association says that in the opinion of the representative committee of operators, which comprises delegates from virtually every large coal producing field, "the country cannot have both booze and sufficient coal this winter."

The statement is as follows:

Coal Operators Speak.

"National-wide prohibition for the period of the war is absolutely essential. In the opinion of the National Coal Association, representing bituminous coal operators with an annual production of nearly 400,000,000 tons, to make effective any plan for speeding up the mines sufficiently to get the 300,000,000 additional tons of coal the country will require this winter."

"A definite program for increased coal production, placed formally before the United States Fuel Administration as the best thought of the industry, carries with it the recommendation that nation-wide prohibition be put into effect at once. The coal production committee of the National Coal Association, which formulated the program, also has addressed a letter to each member of Congress advising him of the recommendation."

"In the opinion of the representative committee of operators, which comprises in its membership delegates from virtually every large coal-producing field in the nation, the country cannot have both booze and sufficient coal this winter. Nor can the country keep booze in the mining section now and have enough coal later on. The liquor traffic is curtailing coal production and the time has come to eliminate it if there is to be the substantial increase in coal output the war program demands."

The recommendations of the National Coal Association have been turned over to Fuel Administrator Garfield, who in turn, it is announced by the committee, is understood to have sent them to President Wilson, who is considering them.

It is further stated by the association that President Frank Farrington, of the United Mine Workers, concurs in the judgment of the operators.
